SEYMOUR, INDIANA, TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1919.

PRICE TWO CENTS.

GRANT IS AWARDED TO INTERSTATE CO.

Privilege Given By Commissioners to Extend Transmission Line
Through the County.

TO WILLIAMS POWER STATION

High Tension Wire To Be Suspended
Along Route from Clearspring and Cortland to Seymour.

Indications that the Interstate Public Service Company is planning to construct a big high tension transmission line from Greenwood to its hydraulic power station at Williams, Lawrence county, were evidenced late Monday afternoon when the Jackson county commissioners granted the company the right to suspend its transmission line from this city to the western part of the county. The system, it is stated, is to be built through Lawrence county from the Jackson county line to Williams. The system was brought to this city from Columbus recently, and another transmission line is being constructed from Greenwood to Columbus.

While none of the details of the company's plans was divulged here, it is understood that eventually it expects to utilize the Williams plant to furnish electrical energy for its plants at Seymour, Columbus, Franklin, Greenwood and also for the traction line which runs from Indianapolis to Seymour. It was recently reported that the Interstate Company has taken over the controlling interest in the traction line from Seymour to Sellersburg and the power for this system will also be provided through the transmission line.

When the line was extended to this city from Columbus, it was stated that the power plant here would not be dismantled but that the additional current would be used to supply the demands upon the local station. Recently the commissioners gave Frank Brady, of Crothersville, the privilege of building a transmission line from Seymour to that place and the local company will also furnish power for that town. The transmission line from Seymour to Brownstown has been in operation for several years. Another is to be constructed from Brownstown to Tampico, it is reported. Vallonia and Medora already receive electrical power through a similar line which is operated by Brownstown capital.

The proposed new transmission system will extend in a general direction from Seymour to a point southwest of Clearspring where it will connect with the Lawrence county system to be built at once, it is said. The line will pass close to Clearspring, Kurtz, Freetown, Surprise and Cortland and it is understood that the company is arranging to build smaller systems to each of these towns if the patronage is sufficient to justify the additional expense. The system will mean that practically every part of the county will be provided with electrical power. Many farmers west of here are already using electricity in place of gasoline motors.

The Williams power plant has been an expensive proposition. It was costly to build and thousands of dollars in damages have been paid to the surrounding land owners because of the back water resulting from the obstruction in White River. The Interstate Company took the property owner several years ago. It is already furnishing electrical power for several cities in that vicinity. The power plant is one of the largest in the state and its capacity is sufficient to furnish electrical energy for a large territory.

SEYMOUR MAY GO IN HIGHER CLASS

Increased Valuation for Purpose of Taxation May Alter the Status of the City.

TOTAL MUST REACH $7,500,000

Advanced Classification Would Mean
Increased Salary for Mayor and Councilmen.

Local people who have been giving critical attention to the operation of the new tax law in this city are of the opinion that the total appraisalment will reach $7,500,000 in which case Seymour will be advanced to the fourth class under the classification provided by the law of 1905. The law states that cities with a population of 10,000 and less than 20,000 are placed in the fourth class while those of 10,000 population or less are in the fifth class. It also provides that if a city has a tax valuation of $7,500,000 it shall be placed in the fourth class.

Seymour's population is not quite large enough to place it in the fourth class, but it is thought very likely that under the new tax law the total appraisalment will be at least $7,500,000 which would also mean that it would get an advanced classification. The assessment figures compiled by the township trustee show that the total valuation, exclusive of corporations, is about $5,500,000. The valuation of the corporations, such as railroads, interurban lines and telegraph companies will be greatly increased this year and the local corporations will also boost the total, so there is a possibility that the figures may reach the necessary $7,500,000 to place the city in the next higher class.

To the average citizen it makes little difference whether the city has a fourth or fifth class rating, but to the mayor and the city councilmen it is of more vital interest. The mayors in cities of the fourth class may receive a salary of not to exceed $1,500 while the salary of city councilmen in fourth class cities is fixed by law at $125 a year. This would mean an increase of $25 annually in the compensation for the seven aldermen.

The present salary of the mayor is not as high as it was several years ago and is lower than the majority of cities in this part of the state. Whether or not the increases would become effective immediately is a conjecture, although the majority of those who have looked into the law declare that the officials would get the benefit without delay.

WILKINS FUNERAL HELD AT HAYDEN

Body of Woman Thought to Have Been Murdered Sent to That Town from Indianapolis.

INVESTIGATION CONTINUED

Watch Pawned to Soldier and Found at Woman's Home May Furnish Authorities With Clue.

The body of Miss Maye Wilkins, thirty-four, who is believed to have been murdered at the home of her sister, Mrs. Henry W. Daringer, Hendrick Place, Indianapolis, was taken to Hayden this morning, her former home, for burial. Her body was found in a cistern at the Daringer home Saturday afternoon by her nephew, Russell Daringer. She had lived in Indianapolis about twenty years.

The investigation in an effort to locate the murderer is continuing. Dr. Paul F. Robinson, Marion county coroner, is conducting an inquest and examined three witnesses Monday. They were the brother-in-law and nephew and Paul Johnson, a discharged soldier, who gave evidence which may be valuable.

Johnson told Dr. Robinson that he was at Camp Custer, Mich., with George Kessler, who is wanted by the police for the murder and who, it is believed, was the last person with Miss Wilkins when she was alive. Johnson said he lent $10 to John Gully, to whom, it is said, Miss Wilkins at one time was engaged to be married and received as security a watch that Gully said belonged to an Indianapolis girl. The watch was never redeemed, Johnson said.

Kessler called Johnson up about three weeks later and said he knew the girl to whom the watch belonged and said he would give Johnson $10 in return for the watch. Johnson said that after he was discharged from military service he came to Indianapolis and brought the watch with him.

He testified he met Kessler in an automobile on South Noble street Indianapolis, on May 28 and Kessler told him to bring the watch to his home, 558 Fletcher avenue, and he would give him $10. He left Kessler about 8 o'clock Wednesday night, he said, and Kessler told him at that time that he was going to return the watch to the young woman who owned it.

Johnson said he did not see Kessler again until Friday afternoon when Kessler and a woman whom he introduced as his wife invited him to accompany them on a swimming trip in the country. Before starting on the trip they drove to Kessler's house and Kessler gave Johnson $10 which he said he had received for returning the watch to the young woman who owned it. They returned from the swimming trip about 8:30 o'clock Friday night and separated, Johnson said, and this was the last time he saw Kessler.

Henry W. Daringer told Dr. Robinson that the watch to which Johnson referred was found on a table in the front room of his home on Thursday morning, when Miss Wilkins was reported missing.

Miss Wilkins was married about five years ago to Kenneth Conover, but later obtained a divorce and resumed her maiden name, relatives told the police.

Miss Wilkins was employed every other night on the late shift at the filling station of the National Refining Company, Randolph and East Michigan streets, Indianapolis. At the time of her disappearance she had in her possession about $160, the day's receipts at the filling station. It is believed robbery was the motive for the murder.

Guilt When Arrested.

Joseph Eleck, age 18, and Joe Olah, age 17, giving their home as Cleveland, O., were arrested Monday night by Officer Weddell and placed in jail, charged with petit larceny. The boys admitted entering the home of Louis Bruning on East Second street about 8 o'clock and helping themselves to two loaves of bread, a quantity of butter, some ham, crackers and other edibles.

Eleck and Olah were arraigned before Mayor C. W. Burkart in city court this morning and entered pleas of guilty to the charge. The boys stated that they had left their home about two days ago and were bumming their way on freight trains to Nebraska where they had hope of finding work on a ranch. They told the mayor that they had been working in factories at Cleveland but were unable to earn enough money and that they had decided to go to Nebraska in hopes of making more as "cow punchers". They admitted that they had acquired their desire to go

Senate Interstate Commerce Committee Makes Report on The Measure.

Washington, June 3—The senate interstate commerce commission favorably reported a bill for return "of once" for the return of the telephone and telegraph lines to their owners. After long discussion the committee adopted an amendment by Pomerene of Ohio, providing that rate increases granted under government control shall continue until the bill passes and the date of its approval by the president. The companies, however, are permitted to reduce rates voluntarily. The committee also reported the resolution restoring to the interstate commerce commission its pre-war control over railroad rates.

QUERY TO BE PUT TO GERMAN ENVOYS

Allies Want to Know if Enemy is

TO DETERMINE MODIFICATIONS

President Confers With American
Delegates Relative to Reparations
Sections of Pact.

Paris, June 3—Before the allies reply to the counter proposals the Germans may be asked indirectly to go on record as to whether they intend to sign the treaty, it was learned today.

If the Germans express a willingness to accept the principles established in the present documents, then modifications will be made, it was said. But if the Germans say they will not accept the basic principles the allies will consider modification useless.

President Wilson conferred today with American commissioners and experts regarding the proposed modifications of the economic sections of the German treaty. The suggested changes were outlined as follows:

Fixing of a definite sum which Germany must pay in reparations to $25,000,000,000 or $30,000,000,000.

Clarifying of the clause regarding powers of the reparations commission as to issuing decree governing German international affairs.

Allowing four years instead of two for payment of the first $5,000,000,000 of reparations.

Making provisions to enable Germany to acquire merchant shipping by relief or charter or otherwise.

SIXTEEN YEAR OLD GIRL LEAVES WITH CARNIVAL

Police Asked by Mrs. Norman Rhude to Assist in Getting Her Daughter Home.

Mrs. Norman Rhude has asked the local police to assist her in locating her sixteen-year-old daughter who she is inclined to believe left with the carnival company which spent last week in this city under the auspices of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The carnival company left here for Terre Haute where it is to stage a carnival this week. The police in that city have been asked to investigate and see whether the Rhude girl is with the company. The daughter, it is said, has caused her parents considerable worry and several months ago she was brought before Mayor Burkart in city court at which time she was reprimanded for some of her actions.

New York—Home of Mayor Harry Davis damaged by bomb. Rectory of Catholic Church of "Our Lady of Victory", and home of a jeweler bombed; two under arrest.

Pittsburg—Two bomb explosions. Six houses damaged.

Boston—Home of State Representative Leland Powers in Newtonville and Justice Albert Hayden in Roxbury damaged by bombs.

Patterson, N. J.—Two family house wrecked by bombs.

By United Press

Washington, June 3—Secret service agents throughout the country today hunted the anarchists' ring believed responsible for a bold attempt upon the life of Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, here, last night, and efforts to kill prominent persons elsewhere in the United States.

In the tattered remains of the terrorist here who was blown to fragments by the bomb which ripped open the front of the Palmer home and shattered windows and furniture in Washington's most fashionable residence district is the only clue the police have as to who is behind the death plot.

That it may be the same gang that threatened the May day tragedy was the belief of officials here. Working on this theory every precaution was being taken to guard the homes of other government officials, who with Attorney General Palmer were marked for death by the May day plotters.

Reports of bomb outrages almost at the same hour as the one here, in Cleveland, New York, Newtonville, Mass., Boston, Philadelphia, Patterson, N. J., and Pittsburg, left no doubt in the minds of officials here that the plot was widespread.

Senator Lodge declared he had a copy of the treaty in his hands yesterday.

"The treaty is in New York," Lodge declared flatly. "I had a copy of it in my hands yesterday. I was offered a copy but I refused it as I had said that if a copy ever came to me I should feel compelled to make it public. I have heard of four copies in existence in New York. AMERICAN RIGHTS.

In April 1917 the United States went to war with Germany because the autocratic rulers in that country were assuming authority and exercising power which interfered with the rights of the people of this country. The nation was forced to arms because the assailant was too big for the authorities in this country to overcome. It required strength and brawn to whip the criminals into submission. We went to war because American rights were trampled.

Today this country is facing an-

QUESTIONNAIRE

ANSWERS WHICH WILL SOLVE PERPLEXING PROBLEMS OF THIS RECONSTRUCTION ERA.

Query.—The government has launched an educational campaign to encourage building in order to put more men to work. Would not a similar movement to show how the old structures can be best and most economically repaired and made good as new also help?

Answer.—It is learned that such a plan is in effect and is linked directly with the Washington propaganda.

Industry must be turned back from works of war to the ways of peace. Employment must be found, in the meanwhile, for those whose occupation has been interrupted. There is no real surplus of labor in the United States. Rather there is a shortage, which would be acute if normal conditions were already restored, and one step towards restoring them will come with resumption of repair work.

Government restrictions, imposed by the necessities of the war program, have for many months past retarded or altogether prevented construction, improvement and repairs. These restrictions are now off, and there is scarcely a town, a city, a factory, a dwelling or a farm that does not reveal a crying need for prompt attention. Nothing delays such instant action except the feeling that prices are high for the time being and may be lower. That is not logical. No matter what it costs to repair, the cost is less than the cost of neglect. No matter what the cost of paint, the wind and the weather will collect a higher bill in deterioration and decay.

Query.—What do you think of paint as an investment, aside from the appearance it lends? Does it really PAY to paint a house regularly, say, every three or four years?

Answer.—Good paint properly applied when needed is the main thing in making a house last long and well. A house worth $2,500 can be painted at a cost of about $125. In 60 years that house will need about 15 paintings, the total cost of which will be $1,895. Left without paint, such a house would fall into complete ruin in 30 years. So taking 60 years as a basis for our figures we find that with paint a home will last that time in good condition and will cost, plus paint, $4,375. Without paint the house would have to be rebuilt at the end of 30 years and would be ready for another complete renovation when the sixtieth year arrived. Cost, without paint, $5,000 for a home ready to fall to pieces. Does regular painting pay? As the old Dutch adage says:

"PAINT PAYS FOR ITSELF."

Query.—I have a quantity of old paint on hand. Can I use it for the first coat in repainting my barn?

Answer.—On no account should old paint which has become fat be used for priming either old or new work. Old paint in that condition is best used on a fence, brickwork or tinwork. If you value your barn sufficiently to paint it, do it the justice of a good job.

GREAT WORK OF ENGINEERS

War Department Relates Astounding Achievements of Corps at Home and Abroad—One Device Spotted 117 German Gun Positions in Single Day—Corps Also Produced Most Powerful Searchlight in Use.

The war story of the engineer corps at home and in France is told officially for the first time in chapters of the war department's brief history of American war efforts, made public in advance sheets. Many of the recorded accomplishments of the engineers have been published before as isolated incidents, but this is the first complete and connected story which gives any idea of the extraordinary scope of the duties modern warfare laid upon engineering troops.

Probably the best illustration of this so far as the troops in France are concerned is the technical organization of the units of the engineers which reached the other side. There were seven regiments and two battalions of railway construction engineers, five battalions for maintenance of way; two battalions for maintenance of railway equipment; four regiments and one battalion to operate the main American railways in France; three regiments to operate light railways and their repair shops; two regiments to operate the regular railway repair shops; two regiments and six separate battalions on general construction work; two regiments for storing and transporting engineer supplies; a forestry regiment; a light railway construction regiment; a road building regiment; a water supply regiment; a mining regiment; a quarrying regiment; a technical regiment for surveying and sound ranging; three survey and printing battalions; two railway transportation battalions; an electrical and mechanical regiment; several separate companies to operate cranes; a camouflage service; five inland waterway companies to operate canal boats and the like; five pontoon trains and a pontoon park; a railway transportation and stores battalion and a searchlight regiment.

And Then There Were the Sappers. These special units, all composed of men trained in civil life in the United States for the work they did in France, were in addition to the fighting engineers with each division, the sappers, who formed about eight per cent of all of the combatant troops in France. One section of the report is devoted to the development of American railways in France and to the production of railway equipment in the United States to meet the call from the front. There were shipped to France 1,303 locomotives before the armistice was signed, of which 908 were in service at that time. In addition, 18,313 freight cars were shipped abroad, both engines and cars having been produced specially for service in France. These were employed upon the 937 miles of standard gauge track laid in France by the engineers with equipment shipped from this country, and the rolling stock was in addition to great quantities of light railway equipment for front line work that was also sent abroad.

Hospital trains were obtained in England, 19 of them with a total of 304 cars having been completed by December, 1918, with 29 additional trains under construction. They cost more than $18,000 per car, but it is estimated that to have produced them in the United States and shipped them would have cost $40,000 per car.

The report lays stress on the fact that great progress was made during the war in the development of road building, railway, and other engineering equipment which will be of value commercially in peace time. The motorized machine shops alone, it is stated, are practically certain to bring about in this country the use of moving shops of this character in agricultural communities as farming machinery increases.

"The day has come," the report says, "when the traveling machine shop will be a familiar sight upon our rural highways."

Among the motorized shops created were the photolithographic press trucks, which were able to produce maps from original sketches within 12 hours, as compared with four days required by similar French and British units.

A special chapter is devoted to listening instruments developed during the war to locate hidden guns. Improving upon allied designs, the engineer corps produced machines for this purpose which operated with "uncanny accuracy," one of them having spotted 117 German gun positions in a single day. Subsequently these were followed by instruments of even greater power, and at the close of the war there were 12 complete outfits, each covering a five-mile stretch of front, at work on the American lines.

Similar development of instruments for locating hostile airplanes were carried out until it was possible to determine the location of a raider at night within an angle of three degrees. The American types produced were easily portable and quickly set up to aid the searchlights. A hint at the scientific developments which were in sight in connection with these sound-ranging devices is contained in the following paragraph:

"When the fighting stopped our military scientists and others co-operating with them were working on the development of a sound-ranging apparatus intended to give troops warning of shell fired by the enemy in their direction. The preliminary experiments found that at 4.1 miles these mechanisms could detect the firing of the gun as long as 19 seconds before the shell arrived, thus giving troops ample time to get under cover. Such a development was possible because of the far greater speed with which earth vibrations travel than those of sound in the air.

"Except for lack of time in the brief seconds between the firing of the gun and the arrival of the shell it would be quite possible with this proposed apparatus to calculate almost exactly where the shell would land.

The corps produced also a new form of searchlight more powerful than any that had preceded it in any army, and with which the Second Field army had been partially equipped.

"It weighed," the report says, "one-eighth as much as lights of former designs, cost only one-third as much, was about one-fourth as large in bulk, and threw a light ten per cent stronger than any other portable projector in existence."

The engineers were at work when the fighting ended upon a mechanism which would enable them to control searchlights from a distance.

The chapter devoted to the work of the engineer corps in France draws a vivid picture of the duties of the combat engineers who played their full part in the fighting from the beginning to the end. It also tells in detail of the building of the railways, the cutting down of French forests to convert them into barracks for American troops; of the miles of highways built and constantly rebuilt as shellfire tore them to pieces; of cement mills taken over in France by American troops to provide trench materials; of the great map-printing plant, where the engineers finally were able to produce not only all maps needed for the American army but even supplied the French Seventh and Eighth army with base maps for their fronts. In this huge plant at Langres in November over 1,900,000 lithographic prints were made and over a million sheets of type work done. There is told also the story of a camouflage factory at Dijon where material to blind enemy airplanes' eyes and to confuse the enemy's pickets was turned out in vast quantities.

"Utilizing and applying the new knowledge and scientific achievements of recent years," the report says, in concluding that portion devoted to the engineers, "drawing upon the fund of experience acquired by the regular army in its theoretical studies and past wars, making available the vast amount of technical skill which has assisted this nation to its present commercial and industrial status, the engineers of the United States army worked and fought, planned and accomplished in France a work which in magnitude exceeds any similar undertaking recorded in American history. From base ports to first waves of an assault upon the enemy's positions, engineer troops have been constantly in action, first to last, and have 'carried on' always with the high ideals of the professional and with the motto of the corps of engineers: 'Essayons' (Let us try), before them."

DRIVING THEM OUT

Returned Soldiers Have Constituted Themselves Into Courts.

Returned soldiers in the Lemmon, S. D., territory have constituted themselves judges, jurors and executioners in all cases in which the United States army or the United States is slandered, and will drive from the community all men guilty of such slanders. As a starter in their campaign to rid the country of these men they already have driven one undesirable from Lemmon. The soldiers waited on the individual, who is a Russian, and gave him 30 minutes to leave town, threatening that if he was found in town at the expiration of the half hour period he would be treated to the roughest handling he ever received.

It is announced that the soldiers are about to take action in another case, it being intimated that this is a much more flagrant case and that accordingly the treatment will be much more severe.

Others are expected to be given the "move-along" order, the intention being to purge the community and vicinity of all persons of known pro-German and anti-American sentiments. Cool heads among the soldiers are cautioning them to be careful and not do an injustice to any person.

NO PRIDE IN DEATH

Cemetery Directors Insist That Graves of Rich and Poor Be Alike.

Pride, haughtiness, distinction—in death? The thought alone is a Christian sacrilege, much less the dead itself.

So reasoned the directors of the Lakewood Park Cemetery association of Lakewood, O., who demand that the resting place of the rich man and the poor man hereafter must be uniform—a modest headstone, rising not more than a foot above the cemetery lawn.

"It does away with the attempt of well-meaning people to outdo each other in the size of their monuments," said George Thorne, president of the association.

DALMATIA LONG A STORM CENTER

ORIGINATED IN ROMAN TIMES

Fiume a Foothold on the Eastern Adriatic Where Italians Clung Fast Despite Steady Influx of Slavs in the Interior—City Bears Evidence of Early Italian Culture—Very Small Proportion of the Population of the City Is Hungarian.

Data in the records of the National Geographical society throw strong light on the places which figured in rival territorial claims of Italy and Jugo-Slavia. Of the city most hotly disputed it is said:

"Fiume is another of those footholds on the eastern Adriatic where Italians clung fast despite the steady influx of the Slavs in the interior and even into Fiume itself. Thus the city bears evidence of early Italian culture. It figured as a potent Slavo factor in the turmoil of Balkan politics and it felt strongly the influence of Hungary upon its thriving industries and fast growing commerce. If Trieste was the Bremen of Austria, Fiume was the Hamburg of the Hungarian kingdom.

"Magyar gerrymandering caused it to be annexed to Hungary in 1870 in spite of the protest of Croatia, to which it had belonged since the revolution of 1848. Consideration for its value as a seaport rather than for its citizens prompted its establishment as a royal free town.

"Despite the Hungarian interest in the city its prewar population was 90 per cent Italian and Slav, with the Italians slightly predominant. Only about half the remaining tenth were Hungarians. The Slavs included Croats, Serbs and Slovenes. As important to Hungary as is New York or Boston to the United States, Fiume's total population is not much greater than such suburbs of those American ports as East Orange, N. J., or Brockton, Mass.

Three Harbors at Fiume.

"Fiume is situated on the northeast shores of the Gulf of Quarnero, only 70 miles by rail southeast of its trade rival, Trieste. Across the bay is the popular summer resort, Abbazia, famed for its evergreen laurel and profusion of roses, to which tens of thousands of visitors formerly thronged each summer. The older town, distinctly Italian, is built on the hillside overlooking the gulf. The newer city lies nearer the water front. There are three harbors. The largest, accommodating 150 large vessels, is protected by a breakwater half a mile long. The quay is two miles long.

"Before the war Fiume's manufacturing plants included a government tobacco factory, the Whitehead torpedo works, a rice shelling factory, a petroleum factory and many smaller plants, among which were sawmills and paper mills. Its fisheries constituted an important industry. It exported sugar, grain, flour, horses and timber.

"Originating in Roman times, Fiume was destroyed by Charlemagne in 799. The Franks ruled it for a considerable period. Then it passed to feudal lords until Emperor Frederick III. made it a part of Austria. This emperor, who as an archduke of Austria was Frederick V., was the son of Ernest, the 'man of iron,' and Cymburga, a Polish woman from whom the Hapsburgs are thought to have inherited the protruding lip which sometimes became a disfigurement. His long and inconsequential reign is recalled chiefly because he puzzled lexicographers by leaving on his books and pottery and having inscribed on his tomb the initials 'A. E. I. O. U.' The most generally accepted explanation is that the initials stood for the Latin, 'Austria Est Imperari Orbis Universo,' meaning, 'All the earth is subject to Austria.' This was a promissory note of future Austrian greatness which Frederick did little to realize.

"Charles VI. proclaimed Fiume a free port. Maria Theresa first united it with Hungary. Successively occupied by the French and British, it reverted to Austria and later was restored to Hungary before it was added to Croatia.

"Small wonder that Dalmatia should form one of the most sharply contested regions in the rival Italian and Jugo-Slav claims, for this strip of sea coast land for eight centuries has been swept by continuous racial tempests. With an area about equal to Connecticut, Dalmatia is so elongated that nowhere is it more than 35 miles wide and it tapers down to a mile at Cattaro.

"With a climate of extreme temperatures, hot and dry when the sirocco sweeps over it and cold and wet when the dread bora or 'wind of death' comes from the sea, peasants find life a struggle. The land is not fertile, much of it is not arable at all. The Croats and Serbians constitute the Slavic element in Dalmatia. They speak the same language but employ two alphabets. The Serbs use the Russian and the Croats the Latin letters and alphabet. In the cities the Latin influence is more prevalent."

MADE OIL FROM SEEDS

Germans Used Primitive Stone Mill for the Purpose.

One of the sights in Remagen for American soldiers quartered in the Coblenz section of the occupied area is a primitive stone mill used by the Germans for the production of a vegetable substitute for animal and mineral oils and fats. An oil was made here from the seeds of beech trees and the fodder plant, rape. These seeds were mixed in equal parts and ground in the stones of the old mill. Twelve pounds of seeds yielded about one quart of oil and left a highly nutritious cattle fodder. Remagen was the headquarters of the One Hundred and Sixty-fifth infantry, New York's "Old Sixty-ninth" of the Forty-second division.

RAINBOW BAND

Concert to be Given at Majestic Theater Wednesday Night.

The seat sale for the concert to be given by the Indiana Rainbow Band at the Majestic theater Wednesday night has been large and it is expected that the house will be crowded. Although there was disappointment when it was announced that the sextette would not appear with the band on account of an engagement at an Indianapolis theater this week, assurance is given that an excellent concert will be given. There will be thirty-five pieces in the band, it is announced, and the program is of exceptional merit. Reginald Brinklow, formerly of this city, is the conductor. When the management learned that the sextette would not appear here a change in the prices was made, all seats on the first floor being sold at $1 with 50c seats in the balcony. Those who have paid $1.50 for seats will be refunded fifty cents at the theater Wednesday night.

A big house enjoyed the unusual and in many respects spectacular film play, "Mickey," which was presented at the Majestic theater last night. Mabel Normand in the central figure in the play and it is about her that the story of pathos, love, romance and adventure is constructed. The scene of the horse race was popular with the audience and other portrayals were out of the ordinary. The production will be seen again tonight at the local house.

place where it is not allowed to come in the United States senate."

American representatives in Paris ordered copies of the treaty addressed to the United States, but these were held up when they were discovered on the way, Lodge said. Lodge's statement came during the senate suffrage debate which was halted temporarily when Senator Johnson's resolution demanding the text of the peace treaty came up automatically at 2 o'clock.

Democratic senators rushed to the administration's defense. Senator Swanson, Democrat, asked if Lodge wanted the President to violate his pledge not to make public the treaty text. Lodge retorted. "It is being sold on the streets of Berlin."

Clarence Brown arrived in New York from overseas Saturday night, according to word received here by relatives, and expects to be sent to Camp Taylor for his discharge. Mr. Brown is the husband of the former Miss Agnes Plunkett, of this city, and his home is in Seymour.—Columbus Herald.

We have just received a large supply of the famous Aviston's Special Patent Flour for wholesale and retail trade. This flour is manufactured out of hard winter wheat and every sack is guaranteed as to quality.

We carry a big stock of bran, middlings and shorts for sale. Schumacher's hog feed is always carried in stock. All of this feed is on the basis of about $10 a ton less than hominy meal but for feeders who prefer hominy meal we will have a full car load coming in.

We have on hands a full stock of Whip-o-will cow peas and also soy beans to be sold at a low price. Farmers can depend on getting a stock of feed here on any day that their wagons come in, and everyone that comes in once and gets our prices will come again.

We have a large stock of scratch feed for chickens and feed for little chicks at a very low price. A good stock of Pocahontas coal on hands which will last but a few days as we will not handle any more Pocahontas coal this year. Anyone wanting anthracite coal can place orders as we will have an adequate stock. We advise that coal be bought now as the price will surely be higher. G. H. One of the important matters up for discussion was the Methodist Centenary movement. It is under-

The Germans Rushed to Buy Diamonds

When They Heard There Was a Prospect of Peace

From authoritative sources it has been learned that when it became apparent that peace would soon come, hundreds of Germans hastened to buy diamonds. They knew that securities might shrink in value and that even the coin of their country might decrease in purchasing power with the new conditions. They knew, likewise, that the very best investment in the world is diamonds. So they bought the precious gems. In any country diamonds are unexcelled as investments. For more than 25 years they have advanced about 10 per cent. a year—and they'll continue to advance. Diamonds "live" for centuries, are easily carried, are readily converted into cash and are not affected by unusual conditions of war or peace.

The diamonds, offered by Kamman's are sold at prices beyond competition. The reason for this is because they are bought by us direct from the cutters for cash.

WOMAN RULES RELIEF

Has Charge of Large Activities in Czecho-Slovakia.

Lady Muriel Paget Tells of Urgent Food Needs of Millions of People.

Paris.—A woman has been entrusted with the big task of organizing and administering relief work in one of Europe's new states—Czecho-Slovakia.

Lady Muriel Paget, an Englishwoman whose devotion to the Czecho-Slovak cause is well known, arrived here from Prague after a month's tour of the new republic, and outlined to the Associated Press correspondent her scheme for the relief of that country. Her plan, which has the approval of the Czecho-Slovak authorities, is to enlist a body of able and willing social workers to train the women of Czecho-Slovakia in social welfare work. Her ambition is to interest patriotic Czech women in America in the welfare of their native land.

"There are, roughly, 5,000,000 people in Czecho-Slovakia today who have just enough to keep body and soul together," Lady Muriel said. "Against these who may be described as the rural population, there are 7,000,000 who are below the line of bare existence. They are, broadly speaking, the industrial and mining population."

"Food, most of it from America, is now coming into the country through Trieste at the rate of about a hundred carloads a day; yet 400,000 people in eastern Slovakia are starving, and even in the better-situated parts the flour ration is only three pounds a head per month."

Lady Muriel explained how this situation is utilized by the Magyars in Hungary to sow discontent among the Slovaks.

"Practically all the intelligent classes have left Slovakia," Lady Muriel continued, "and it is during the present crisis and until their own people can be trained to do constructive and administrative work that the Czecho-Slovak government and the people have asked me to organize temporary assistance and provide advice."

Lady Muriel will establish her relief headquarters at Pressburg, from which center the sixteen necessitous Slovakian districts will be fed, clothed and medically assisted.

Pennsylvania Girl Loses Flowing Black Hair Through Old Italian Custom.

Ambler, Pa.—Pretty Sarah Paladine, nineteen, is minus her flowing black hair as the result, the police believe, of an old Italian love superstition.

A masked man wearing white gloves forced his way into her bedroom at midnight, made the girl get out of bed and cut off part of her hair. He then bound her with a rope, gagged her with the hair he had shorn and scratched both her arms with a needle. He then cut off the remainder of her hair, searched all the drawers of the bureau in the room, but took nothing, and escaped when he heard a noise in another part of the house.

Members of the household say it is an Italian belief that if a lover can secure a portion of the hair of the girl he loves and can scratch her until the blood comes he will have her in his power.

HOOVER'S

Thoughts and Things

The business of living, when boiled down to its clearest essence and all the froth skimmed off, is just a matter of thinking.

Each of us is continually thinking ideas of our own and swapping them for the ideas of others. If there is a famine of outside ideas we shrivel up ourselves. Children with "nobody to play with" are unhappy and unmanageable.

From thinking with our heads to doing with our hands is but a little step and then our thoughts become things.

It is because men of America are so unfettered in their thinking and doing that this country is such a fine place to live in. It is also because these thoughts are freely radiated and spread broadcast, in the distribution of manufactured things and in the distribution of the facts about them (advertising), that this country is such a fine place to live in.

The originator of an idea is not much better off than before he originated it till he gets some one else to absorb it and enjoy it and benefit by it.

The man or woman surrounded by better thoughts and things but who pays not the slightest attention to them is not much better off than the one with "nobody to play with."

The advertisements in the papers are thoughts—telling you about the ideas that other men and women have thought out for your happiness. Read the ads. They are the voices from hundreds of thousands of looms, shops, foundries, studios, laboratories, where millions of minds are turning pleasant thoughts into worth while things for your comfort.

TEACHES ART OF FLYING WHILE ON TERRA FIRMA

Novel Machine Puts Novice Through Stunts Without Peril.

TESTS FITNESS FOR AVIATION

Ruggles Orientator Will Enable Civilians as Well as Soldiers to Determine Whether They Are Fit for Flying—Does for Beginning Aviator About What Walking Chair Does for an Infant Learning to Tumble.

A machine that enables you to experience all the physical sensations of flying and to test your fitness for aviation without once losing your hold upon the earth has just been adopted by the war department for use in training its pilots, writes Frederic J. Haskin in Chicago Daily News. It is probable that this device, known as the Ruggles orientator, will be a feature of all flying schools and will enable civilians as well as soldiers to determine without risking their lives whether they are fit for flying.

The Ruggles machine does for the beginning aviator about what a walking chair does for an infant learning to toddle—it enables him to go through the motions without risking a tumble.

One of these orientators was officially demonstrated in Washington, D. C., the other day. The machine consists of two sets of steel rings, the largest one of which is 12 feet in diameter. One ring revolves in the perpendicular plane. The rings are driven by small motors so that they revolve within each other. The "boat" in which the pupil sits is suspended from the inner ring and its movements may be controlled by either set of rings. The motors which control the boat may be operated from within by the pupil or from the outside by the instructor.

"Dips, Glides and Volplanes." The prospective pilot seats himself in the boat while the instructor sits, with his hand on the control, alongside the machine. The instructor can put his pupil through all the motions of a machine in the air by operating the controls, which are connected to the machine by means of wire bat-

"froze the controls," as they say in the army—that is, lost his head and failed to manipulate the controls as his instructor told him, thus sacrificing the lives of both of them. When a prospective flyer has gone through all the motions of controlling a few hundred times in the ground machine any tendency he may have to freeze the controls is pretty sure to have been eliminated.

The old method of testing the adaptability of a man to flying by whirling him in a revolving chair ten or more times is entirely obviated by this scientific method of finding out whether or not a man is fitted to become a pilot.

Owing to the urgent demand for pilots during the war it was then almost impossible to give much attention to the improvement of the method of training aviators. But now that peace has come the aeronautic division of the war department is concentrating on the development of better methods in this all important military branch. The adoption of the Ruggles machine is the first step in that direction.

"The training of the aviator is in its infancy," declared Maj. F. J. Martel, one of the enthusiastic supporters of the new method and a former flyer in the British royal air force. "We have not been training enough pilots to evolve a scientifically correct way of putting a man in the air and knowing that he will conduct himself as he should under all emergencies. What pilots we have trained—more than 8,000—were trained during an urgent demand and our perspective of training was kept out of focus. There has been practically no concentration on the problem and what practical systems were evolved were the work of instructors on the field, whose one concern was the turning out of pilots in numbers.

Can't Turn 'Em Loose in Air. "Now that the demand for the pilots has been reduced to the minimum, it is time to survey the subject of training with the idea of launching a system by which an aviator may be trained, not only safely from a practical standpoint, but scientifically as well. The time has passed when we can allow a cadet to take a few hours' ground instruction, a few hours' dual instruction, and then turn him loose in the air.

"The pupil under the old system at no time during his ground school instruction actually used airplane controls, nor did he experience the effect flying had on his natural upright position. Experience is not transferable. A pupil could be told a thousand times how to handle the controls in a plane, and yet be completely confused the minute he was seated in one and actually controlling. The pupil is taken from the ground school and suddenly placed in an airplane and asked to fly. He is asked to apply himself in a most attentive manner at a time when his mind and senses are practically paralyzed with apprehension and the mental effort to adjust himself to an absolutely foreign environment.

"Nature did not intend that a man should fly, nor that man in his present development should have to think and act with perfect co-ordination when suddenly suspended head down. It takes time to learn perfect self-control under extraordinary conditions, and a cadet cannot be expected to become adjusted to these things on his first 'hop,' if he has never had the sensations before going up. This is where the Ruggles orientator helps the pupil and prepares him for his 'stunting' work. One hour 'stunting' in the orientator gives the pupil as much practice as he would probably get in 20 hours' flying. This is a great saving of time and a tremendous saving of equipment. This new device seems to be the logical progressive step from theory to actual flying."

The orientator will not teach a man actually to fly, but it will undoubtedly be of great assistance to the embryo flyer by developing his senses for flying. It will also make the task of his instructor easier and less dangerous.

"Freezing" of the Controls. Records show that some of the best pilots in the air service have been killed while instructing. In most cases the crashes were not due to defects in the planes. The most plausible theory in most cases is that the cadet

HOSTESS HOUSE SCENE OF FAMILY REUNION

How It Happened to Entertain Only A. E. F. Mother Who Visited Army of Occupation.

By GRACE GOULDER.
(With the American Y. W. C. A. Overseas.)
Coblentz, Germany,
March 28 (By Mail.)

It happened right here in Coblentz. A big corporal came into the Y. W. C. A. Hostess House and asked for the director, Miss Ruth Woodsmall, who comes from Colorado Springs, Colo.

"Could my mother stay here?" he began at once, trying his best to cover his excitement.

"Your mother?" gasped Miss Woodsmall. "How did your mother ever get here?"

"Well, she isn't here yet, but if she comes will you keep her?"

"Of course I will, but—"

She didn't finish, for the boy had smashed his cap back on his head and was out of the door on a run.

The corporal's visit remained a mystery for two days. Then one evening just at dusk a little white haired woman dressed exquisitely in black appeared in the sitting room of the Hostess House, and the corporal was hovering behind her, trying to be beside her and back of her and in front of her all at once. He was carrying her coat—a big fur one. With them were three doughboys, pals of the corporal. They tried to keep in the background, but their eyes were glued on her face.

Everyone in the sitting room sat at attention. There are no English speaking men or women out of uniform in the Third Army area. Yet here was a woman in civilian clothes. Mothers are unheard of with the army. But this was a mother, everyone knew. After awhile someone found out about this mother.

Had Been Interned During War. She and her husband, who were born in Germany, but had been naturalized, lived in San Francisco. Before the war they left for Weisbaden, Germany, that their invalid daughter might have treatment at this famous health resort.

They brought their other children with them. One was Walter, a small boy, and the other was Ralph, now Corporal Stepp of the American Army.

When the war was declared they sent Ralph back to America, because he was of military age, and they did not want him to fight for the kaiser. Then America entered the war.

Mrs. Stepp—Mrs. Anna Stepp she is—told this part of the story:

"Until a month ago I hadn't heard from Ralph for two years and a half—even before America got in the war mail was held up. I didn't know whether he was in the army or not—but I was sure he was, because—well, because he is an American." Here she stopped a minute to smile up at him.

"After awhile we heard from some friends that he was in the army—and that he had come over here. That was all I ever knew. It's nearly five years since I have seen him!

"Of course it was awfully hard—I couldn't get word to him and he couldn't to me. My husband used to tell me it wouldn't help Ralph any for me to cry. I tried not to—before the rest of them anyway. My daughter got worse steadily—she is no better. We couldn't get the proper food for her after awhile. And she hated to see me worried about Ralph, so I used to try to keep up before them.

"Last January my husband came to Coblentz about his citizen papers. An American soldier in Ralph's company who was in the office heard his name and asked him if he was any relation to Ralph. He didn't tell him Ralph was in Coblentz, but went after Ralph. He didn't tell Ralph his father was here. When they met they couldn't believe their eyes.

"Ever since then I have been trying to see Ralph. He couldn't come to Weisbaden because it was out of the American area, and I couldn't get through until today—more than two months."

They asked her if her Ralph had changed much in all that time.

"Oh, yes—very much. But do you know, I think it is because all that long time when I didn't know where he was or how he was—I got in the habit of thinking of him as he was when he was a baby—I kept seeing him as a baby and remembering the way he felt when he was little. Isn't that queer? And now look at him!"

And the corporal tried not to see the adoration in her eyes.

"Five years is a long time to wait to see your boy," she murmured, and kept her eyes on him. Again she had forgotten the people around her.

The corporal cleared his throat. "This is why I ask if you if you could keep my mother, Miss Woodsmall. I didn't want her to come unless she had a good place to stay. Ah, e-e—thanks awfully."

And that is the story of how the Hostess House happened to entertain the only known A. E. F. mother who has visited the Army of Occupation.

How Cleopatra's Needle Was Saved. New Yorkers awoke one morning to find in their breakfast headlines the news that a zealous park employee had discovered signs of disintegration on the surface of the city's most treasured antique—Cleopatra's Needle. Photographs revealed that the monolith was peeling, large pieces of sandstone having fallen from the tall shaft, carrying with them part of the prized hieroglyphs.

London's twin sister of Cleopatra's Needle was reported as resting comfortably and enduringly on the banks of the Thames, and the rival port wondered whether a preparation would be found to stay the attacks of their harsher climate.

Such a preparation was soon forthcoming. A new paint combination as a preservative for stone was invented by Dr. William Kuckro, chemist of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Many years previous coating with paraffin had not entirely accomplished its purpose. The new painting process, however, proved a success. Disintegration was halted and the damaged parts restored. New York breathed easily again.

THE OBELISK.

The Obelisk was presented to the City of New York by the Khedive of Egypt.

Lieutenant Commander Goring, U. S. N., after a three years' effort, obtained possession of it and moved it to its present position, at an expense of nearly $100,000. It was finally swung into position at noon, January 22, 1881.

The height of this monument, from base to tip, is 69 feet, 2 inches. The measurement of the base, square through its axis, is 7 feet, 8 1/2 inches. The entire weight of the monolith is 219 1/2 tons.

Since it was quarried near the torrid zone, it has traversed the entire length of Egypt, most of that of the Mediterranean Sea and the width of the Atlantic Ocean—a distance of 8,400 miles—proving itself a first rate traveler for one whose age has exceeded thirty-five centuries. In the course of its existence it has seen Pharaohs and his host going to their destruction in the Red Sea; Shishak marching to the conquest of Jerusalem; Canaanites despoiling the land; Herodotus, Platon and other Greek students engaged in pursuit of Egyptian lore; Alexander the Great on his victorious expedition through the land of Goshen; six and a half centuries of Roman sovereignty; and Christian struggle at Alexandria; all the long line of Moslem rulers since Caliph Omar; and now, leaving altogether its native land, it stands looking upon the million dwellers in this metropolis, whose site was unknown to the Eastern world at a time when the Obelisk had been in existence for two thousand years.

CHAPTER XII.

A Friend in the Forecastle.

I slowly opened my eyes to find myself lying in an upper bunk of the fore-castle. Memory soon returned, stimulated no doubt by the aching of my body where Estada had so brutally kicked me with his heavy boot. The heavy rolling of the bark clearly evidenced that we were already at sea, and bucking against a high wind. It was a dark, dismal, smelly interior, amply large enough, but ill ventilated, and inexpressibly dirty. I must have been lying unconscious for several hours. I rested back, feeling of the numerous bruises on my body, and touching gingerly the dried blood caked on my face. No very serious damage seemed to have been done, although every muscle and tendon appeared to be strained and lacerated. Clinching my teeth to keep back a groan, I succeeded in sitting upright, my head touching the upper deck, as I undertook to survey my surroundings. About half the bunks seemed to be occupied, the figures of the sleeping men barely discernible.

As I sat there, staring about at this scene there was a stir within the upper berth on my own level, and an up-lifted face appeared suddenly in the yellow flare of light. It was manifestly an English face at first glance, rosy of cheek, with chestnut beard. A pair of humorous, gray eyes surveyed me silently, and then, apparently satisfied by the scrutiny, the owner sat up in the bunk, revealing powerful shoulders, and a round, bull neck.

"Ahoy, mate," he said pleasantly, endeavoring to speak low, the effort resembling the growl of a bear. "How do you feel—pretty sore?"

"Ache from head to foot," I answered, immediately feeling his friendliness. "But no harm done."

"I saw part of it. The damn black brute kicked savagely enough, but at that you're lucky; it's the Spanish style to use a knife. I've seen that cock slash a man into ribbons for nothing at all—just to show he was

"OUR STANDBY"

Ohio Lady Tells How Black-Draught Liver Medicine Keeps Her Family in Good Health.

Hillsboro, Ohio.—Mrs. Myrtle Jenkins, of this address, says: "I cannot say too much for the benefit I and my whole family have derived from the use of Black-Draught. It is our standby and as we often say 'our doctor bill saver.' If one of the children begin to complain of head or stomach ache or any of the signs that go with a torpid liver, or constipation, I give them a good dose of Black-Draught and they most always get all right."

I often feel out of sorts, and get a bad taste in the mouth, then I take a good dose.

I at one time had a case of chronic constipation and was nervous and run down on account of it. Also had awful headaches. I would take pills and other medicines that would gripe me and then I would be more constipated than ever. This is how I first began the use of Black-Draught, first in full doses, then in small doses, and was cured.

My children get a cold and I have never found a better laxative. I cannot say too much for what Black-Draught has done for us."

Theford's Black-Draught should be in your medicine chest. Get a package today. All druggists, 25 cents a package. One cent a dose.

bad. Haines tells me your name is Gates, and that you are English." "That's right; I shipped first out of Bristol." "So did I, mate—twenty years ago though, and I never went back since. My name is Tom Watkins. Let's shake; there is quite a sprinkling of us Brits aboard, and we ought to hang together."

He put out a big, hairy fist, and I gripped it heartily, decidedly liking the man as his eyes frankly met mine. He appeared honest and square, a fine type of the English seaman.

"Tom Watkins, you said. May I ask if you were out on the bow-sprit along with Haines last night?"

"Just afore the longboat come in? Yes, we were there."

"Well, I was down below, hanging to the cable, and overheard you two talking together. Somehow, Watkins, you do not seem to me to fit in exactly with this gang of pirates; you don't look to be that sort. How long have you been with them?"

He Glanced About Warily.

He glanced about warily, lowering his voice until it became a hoarse whisper.

"Three years, mate, and most of that time has been hell. I haven't even been ashore, but once, and that was on an island. These fellows don't put any trust in my kind, nor give them any chance to cut and run. Once in awhile a lad does get away, but most of them are caught; and those that are sure get their punishment. They never try it again. I've seen them staked out on the sand and left to die; that ain't no nice thing to remember."

"But how did you come into it?"

"Like most of the rest. I was second mate of the Ranger, a Glasgow brig. These fellows overhauled us at daybreak about a hundred miles off the east end of Cuba. Our skipper was Scotch, and he put up some fight, but it wasn't any use. There was only three of us left alive when the pirates came aboard. One of these died two days later, and another was washed overboard and drowned down in the Gulf. I am all that is left of the Ranger."

"You saved your life by taking on?"

"Sanchez had the two of us, who were able to stand, back in his cabin. He put it to us straight. He said it was up to us whether we signed up or walked the plank; and he didn't appear to care a damn which we chose."

"And you say others of this crew have been obtained in the same manner?"

"I questioned, deeply interested, and perceiving in this a ray of hope. "Not exactly—no, I wouldn't precisely say that. It's true, perhaps, that most of the Brits were forced to join in about the same way I was, and there may be a Scandinavian or two, with a few Dutch, to be counted in that list; but the most are pirates from choice. It's their trade, and they like it. Sanchez only aims to keep hold of a few good men, because he has got to have sailors; but most of his crew are nothing but plain cut-throats. Indians and half-breeds, niggers, creoles, Portuguese, Spanish, and every mongrel you ever heard of. Sanchez himself is half French. The hell-hound who kicked you is a Portuguese, and LeVere is more nigger than anything else. I'll bet there is a hundred rats on board this Namur right now who'd cut your throat for a sovereign, and never so much as think of it again."

"A hundred? Is there that many aboard?"

"A hundred an' thirty all told. Most o' 'em bunk amiships. They're not sailormen, but just cut-throats, an' sea wolves. Yer ought ter see 'em swarm out on deck, like hungry rats, when thar's a fight comin'. It's all they're good fer."

"Watkins," I said soberly, after a pause during which he spat on the dirty deck to thus better express his feelings, "do you mean to say that in three years you've had no chance to escape? No opportunity to get away?"

"Not a chance, mate; no more will you. I know what yer thinkin' 'bout. I had them notions too when I fust come aboard—gettin' all the decent sort tergether, and takin' the vessel. 'Twon't work; thar ain't 'nough who wud risk it, and if thar wus, yer couldn't get 'em tergether. Sanchez is too damn smart fer thet. Every damn rat is a spy. I ain't hed no such talk as this afore in six months, Gates; the last time cost me twenty lashes at the mast-butt. What'd yer have in yer mind, mate?"

"Only this, Watkins. I've got to do something, and believe I can trust you—it's not my life I'm thinking about, but that of a woman."

"A woman! Not the one brought aboard last night?"

"Exactly; now listen—I'm going to tell you my story, and ask your help. My name is not Gates, and I am not the man Mendez brought aboard drunk, and who was thrown over the rail by LeVere. That fellow was drowned. I am Geoffrey Carlyle, an English skipper."

Thereupon I told him my story in detail. Then I said:

"I have no plan; to become a member of the crew was my only thought. But I must act, if at all, before the captain recovers. He would recognize me at sight. You will aid, advise me?"

"That is easier to ask than answer, mate," he admitted finally. "I am an English seaman, and will do my duty, but so far as I can see, there is no plan we can make. It is God who will save the girl, if she is to be saved. He may use us to that end, but it is wholly beyond our power to accomplish it alone. The only thing I can do is to sound out the men aboard, and learn just what we can expect of them if any opportunity to act comes. There are not more than a dozen at most to be relied upon. Play your part, and keep quiet. If you can let her know of your presence aboard it might be best—for if she saw you suddenly, unprepared, she might say or do something to betray you. There are other reasons why it may be best for her to know she is not entirely deserted."

He leaned over, motioning me toward him, until his lips were at my ear.

"It may not prove as hopeless as it appears now," he whispered confidentially. "I helped carry Sanchez to his stateroom, and washed and dressed his wound. There is no surgeon aboard."

DESIGNING COSTUMES TO BE WORN AT METHODIST CENTENARY CELEBRATION

DESIGNS for thousands of costumes to be used in the pageants and life plays of the Methodist Centenary Celebration at Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13, are being prepared by Livingston Platt, the noted costume and scenic designer of New York, who has taken the big job of costuming appropriately all participants in the big exposition. Mr. Platt's designs range from the garb of the ancient Babylonians and their Jewish captives, worn in the first episode of the big pageant, "The Wayfarer," to the more modern dress of Belgian

He has a bad cut, and is very weak from loss of blood. The question of our success hinges on Pedro Estada. This is a chance he has long been waiting for. The only question is, has he the nerve to act. I doubt if he has alone, but LeVere is with him, and that half-breed would cut the throat of his best friend. You understand?—the death of Sanchez would make Estada chief."

"But," I interposed, "in that case what would the crew do?"

"Accept Estada, no doubt; at least the cut-throats would be with him, for he is of their sort. But Sanchez's death would save you from discovery, and," his voice still lower, so that I barely distinguished the words, "in the confusion aboard, if we were ready, the Namur might be so disabled as to compel them to run her ashore for repairs. That would give you a chance. If once we reach Porto Grande there is no hope."

A marling-spike pounded on the scuttle, and Haines' voice roared down.

"Port watch! Hustle out, bullies!"

U. S. Invents Anti-Rust "Dope."

Incident to the war, the government has faced the problem that has so long proved baffling to commercial concerns of protecting iron and steel from rust. In an attempt to solve this federal specialists have perfected various forms of protective coatings. In this connection it may be pertinent to ask whether commercial uses will not be found also for the so-called "dopes" which the government has invented to be applied to airplane wings and which are possessed of valuable weather-resisting and fireproof qualities.

EFFECT OF COLOR UPON THE DURABILITY OF PAINT.

Property owners who may have under consideration the painting of dwellings and other structures should remember that more durable results are obtained when tinted paints are used. Permanent coloring materials which have been ground by machine into a high grade white paint base have the effect of preventing "chalking" and "checking," two defects which are often observed when white paints are used.

Had Old Bank Account.

Burlington, Ia.—James Bryant, seventy-five years old, arrested here on a charge of horse theft, suddenly recalled while in jail that 20 years ago he deposited $1,000 in a Burlington bank. An officer accompanied Bryant to the bank, and, sure enough, he found his account intact with interest accumulated. Bryant says he is afflicted with lapses of memory and says he does not recall stealing the horse, which was taken from a Muscatine stable.

Want to Feel Just Right?

Take an NR Tonight

JUST TRY IT AND SEE how much better you feel in the morning. That "loggy," headachy, tired, don't-know-what's-the-matter feeling will be gone—you'll feel fine.

TROUBLE IS, your system is clogged with a lot of impurities that your over-worked digestive and eliminative organs can't get rid of. Pills, oil, salts, calomel and ordinary laxatives, cathartics and purges only force the bowels and prod the liver.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and even kidneys, not forcing, but toning and strengthening these organs. The result is prompt relief and real, lasting benefit. Make the test. Nature's Remedy will act promptly, thoroughly, yet so mildly, so gently, that you will think nature herself has come to the rescue and is doing the work.

And oh, what a relief! You'll be surprised to find how much better you feel—brighter, better every day. If habitually or stubbornly constipated, take one NR Tablet each night for a week. Then you'll not have to take medicine every day. Just an occasional NR Tablet after that will be sufficient to keep your system in good condition—keep you feeling your best.

Actresses who play in the Liberty Theater at Camp Dix, N. J., find a touch of home in the Players' House which the housing committee of the Young Women's Christian Association, of which Mrs. John D. boys and after searching for them several hours found the pair at the Baltimore & Ohio station about 11:30. When arrested the boys readily admitted breaking into the house and taking the food.

Considering the fact that the boys did not attempt to take anything from the house of value other than the edibles Mayor Burkart decided this afternoon to release the boys providing Mr. Bruning is refunded for his loss. The mayor stated that if they had taken anything other than something to eat he would have sentenced them to the penal farm but under circumstances he did not feel justified in giving them a long term for helping themselves to some food when they were hungry.

NO JEWELS AT OPERA

London Women Use Flowers and Leaves for Adornment.

A characteristic of the London opera season is the almost entire absence of what may be termed "dress jewels," usually worn by the women. On the opening night, the queen of Roumania wore an imposing diamond coronet, but she is a queen. Other women, who before the war would have glittered with diamonds at Covent Garden, are going to Drury Lane with wreaths of flowers or leaves in their hair, and only a string or two of pearls to remind the world they still have the jewel cases.

The dearth of jewels, however, does not prevent a dazzling spectacle, so many of the dresses are composed of gleaming gold or silver tissues of glittering brocades, of sequins and diamond and metallic fringes. The less there is of them the more costly they are as a rule. Feather fans, high-priced ones, are immensely popular again.

STRIKE IN GOLD

Dreams of an Ancient River Bed With Free Ore Came True.

The dreams of an ancient river bed fabulously rich in free gold which had been an obsession of prospectors for half a century have come true.

For more than 50 years miners have believed that if the original channel or old bed could be located where once flowed the Rogue river in its gravel could be found free gold of untold quantities.

And so it happened that G. M. Esterly, owner of the old Waldo mine southwest of Grant's Pass, Ore., the other day made the greatest strike ever made in this section when he turned gravel for the first time. Esterly's holdings consist of 4,200 acres and it is believed that almost every foot of them lie over the old river bed and that nearly all of it is rich in pay dirt.

BULLET HITS WATER

Little Lad Had a Narrow Escape From Death.

Twelve-year-old Vernon Marion, son of Mrs. Frank Marion of Tumalo, Ore., narrowly escaped death while playing on the banks of the Deschutes, a short distance from his home, the other day, when a bullet, fired by C. A. Daniels of that city from the opposite side of the river, hit the water, ricocheted and struck the lad in the forehead.

The boy, stunned by the impact, at first was believed dead, but regained consciousness before being brought to Bend. The bullet, its course being deflected, had followed the bone and was found imbedded under the scalp. Only the fact that the leaden pellet struck one of the thickest portions of the skull saved his life, according to the attending physician.

west from reading "Wild West" stories. The boys' mothers live in Cleveland, their fathers' being dead.

According to the story told by the boys they arrived here on a freight train about 7 o'clock Monday evening. They were without money and had gone without something to eat for over a day. They say that they started out to beg something and had been refused several times. They went to the back door at the Bruning home and after they received no answer to their knock, Eliek cut a hole through the screen door and unlatched it. The boys then entered the dining room where they helped themselves. Members of the Bruning family were sitting on their front porch and the lads were not discovered until they were leaving with the food.

The police were called and Officer Weddell investigated the case. He the service. He was parliamentarian was given a description of the two of the house when he went to war.
